READING LOG

My Name Is:

Here's How It Works!

This free program is for kids under age 18.
Kids should use these sheets to write down all the books
they read from June 6th to July 26th.
For each book they read, kids will get $1 "Library
Loot" (fake money) to spend in our prize store.
They will also get 1 raffle ticket for the big prize drawing.

Kids can claim rewards as often as they want—every day, every week, whatever works for you!
Just please don't wait until the very end. All rewards must be claimed before the big party on July 27th.

When kids sign up, they'll get a paper sea creature. They'll write their name on it, and put it at the starting line of our Reading Race. It's a big "race track" on our wall. For every book they read, they'll move their tail forward towards the finish line. This way everyone can see how much they've read this summer.

We encourage kids to read for themselves whenever possible, but for little kids, being read to counts! They can put audiobooks and Story Time books at the library on their reading log too.
Bigger kids should push themselves by reading books at or above their skill level.

We ask that any book you put on your reading log be checked out from the library, or read at a library event.
This boosts our statistics, which directly affects our funding. Thanks!

Write down the titles of the books you read.

When you come to the library to claim your rewards, don't forget to move your sea creature to show everyone how much you've read!
